I hope you will take advantage of this invitation to join me as a member of a remarkable organization.

Founded in 1849, the XX Academy of Sciences has for more than 150 years played a unique role as an independent institution committed to advancing science and technology and to applying them for the public good.

Perhaps your interests, like mine, range far beyond your own specialty field. If so, our Academy is of especially good value. As a geneticist in a university community, I have long been dedicated to fundamental research, and I'm concerned as well within formation technologies, global public health trends, chemical and biological weapons, and space exploration.

In the course of my work—over the 30 years I have been a member—I have benefited from the Academy's high quality cross-disciplinary contributions and especially the new initiatives in science and technology.

Please join me in this uniquely valuable membership organization and its work to illuminate and improve the contributions of science, engineering, and medicine to global social and economic progress.

Dear Suzanne,

Enclosed you will find the resumes for two excellent candidates that you may be able to use in any searches that you are currently concluding. The first is Beverly McDonald who you can see has a diverse background and has recently left AT & T. the second is Tim Vasquez who was formerly the Chief Financial Officer at Rose Medical Center. I've personally had the opportunity to work with both of these executives and find them to be beyond what I would consider competent. They have both performed extraordinarily well in all the circumstances that have been presented to them. They present the intelligence, foresight, and creativity that I think is so needed in American business in the future.

I would greatly appreciate anything you can do to assist these individuals. Please feel free to contact them directly.

With best regards,

Barbara Brannen
